At the July session of the Assembly commissioners were appointed to treat with Massachusetts respecting the line between the two Colonies. In the previous efforts of Rhode Island they seemed only to have in view the gore of land, now the town of Cumberland; but in the present they mention "the other controverted line," doubtless, meaning what now constitutes the towns of Little Compton, Tiverton, Bristol,

Warren and Barrington. As the differences sometime subsisting between England and Spain, seemed to threaten a sudden resort to hostilities, a privateer was fitted at Newport in August as may, in their opinion, be necessary to ascertain by Godfrey Malbone, John Brown and Geo. Wanton, to whom the Colony lent the principal part of her armament from the public stores, to be returned in " one months time'

&c. This was probably the first commencement of privateering by Godfrey Malbone, who afterwards became so largely, and so successfully engaged in that pursuit. The Government of the colony must have had authority from England to commence hostilities against Spain as early as August, for the Assembly then authorized the Gov. to "grant commissioners to private men of was against Spain and the sub-
